Crafters convene at Campbell Library

Campbell Library held their inaugural craft supply swap on Monday, March 18 from 5:30 to 7 p.m. The idea for the swap came after one of their new hires, Miranda Millette, started last month and talked about her love of crafts. Millette mentioned that she enjoyed crafting cards, and some of the staff at the library came up with the idea to get a supply swap going. They are planning on having the events twice a year, with Millette being very excited for their first one.

The turnout for the evening was smaller, but had a very enthusiastic group of people that took part. For Millette, it was a lot of fun and a great opportunity to get to know other people involved in crafting, who share her and her family's big love for crafting.
