

Portrait of an UPRISING

Clockwise from top left: Jose Dominguez paints a storefront in the Wedge; Lewis Jallahcole gives an impromptu sermon at 38th & Chicago, where George Floyd was choked to death by a Minneapolis police officer on May 25; Antione Jenkins and Josh Browne paint a tanker truck barreling into a crowd of protesters four days after they ran from the truck on I-35W; a close-up of Browne painting the side of the Hennepin Avenue Spynhouse; protesters on the median of I-35W watch the truck's approach on May 31; a mural painted by students from Hopkins' PIM Arts High School outside Calhoun Square; protesters on 38th Street the day after Floyd was killed. Photos by Isaiah Rustad