Here's help on 'Help Wanted' ads

Sooner or later, every growing business needs more "help."

The very smart first thought is to announce the vacancy in the local classified ads.

"Help Wanted" ads are often the most widely read section of every newspaper.

What would it be worth to attract the most qualified person in your community? The very best for only a few more dollars wisely invested in a winning classified ad?

Your friends and neighbors - your readers - won't know what you have to offer if you don't tell them.

Are you in a convenient location with handy parking available? Do you have the finest office space around? Say so.

Is the equipment for your new employee state-of-the-art? Are your vehicles recent models and safety-checked? Have you a record number of accident-free days? Say so.

Are your offices and buildings freshly painted? Do you have flowers in your offices? Nice landscaping? Are your janitorial services tops? Say so.

Do you have a profit-sharing plan? Does your insurance offer comprehensive protection? Are promotions from within? Is there truly an opportunity to turn out top-notch work? Say so.

Would you hire the handicapped? Give someone a chance to start over? Say so.

Whom do you want to respond to your classified? Those now unemployed?

What if you seek someone now gainfully employed who is very satisfied where he/she is?

Will telling everyone about your wonderful growing company require more words in your classified? Yes. Worth it? Yes!

What is another $5 or $10 or even $20 invested in the most brilliant classified ad you can write, if it gets you that very person with the exact qualifications that you need most?

Trust your newspaper classifieds.
