Participants will have the chance to decorate their pieces using colored underglazes. Firing and clear glaze are included with this workshop. Finished pieces will be available for pick up within four weeks following the class.

The class size is capped at 20 people. The participation fee is $70 and the material fee is $15. The class will be from 10 a.m.-1 p.m. on Saturday, July 2, at the Red Wing Arts Clay and Creative Center, 1920 Old West Main St. For more information and to register, visit redwingarts.org.

Coffee and conversations

Red Wing, her hometown, to share insight on today's marketing tactics. She is known for her honesty and helping others succeed.

From growing your email list, upping your engagement on all platforms to sky-rocketing tik-tok followings, she has the tools to help you market your business in a way that is authentic to you.

The conversation will be at 9 a.m. on Wednesday, June 29, at Liberty's Restaurant and Lounge. The event is free for Red Wing Area Chamber of Commerce members and $20 for non-members.

Concert in the Park

Chronogram Magazine says HuDost "is quite folk/postmodern; the band offers new takes on ancient words and melodies, cross-cultural hybrid transcendental music with an edge. This is not fluffy new-age music—it's serious, complex fare. Sommer's vocal execution is precisely orchestrated, her voice-opening, hollow-toned vortexes piercing through the tough spots."

The free concert will be 7-9 p.m. on Wednesday, June 29, at Central Park Bandshell.

COMMUNITY/ART

Capturing the beauty

Artists flock to Red Wing for plein air competition

BY MELISSA THORUD
Staff Writer

Red Wing residents enjoy the beauty of the city every day.

This month, 34 artists from across the country came to capture that beauty.

The artists were invited by Red Wing Arts for a competition that culminates Saturday, June 25.

There were other artists, too, creating art in the city. Red Wing Arts divided them into two categories – the juried artists in the competition and open-class artists that simply enjoyed creating paintings.

This is the 16th year for the competition.

The artists came from eight states. Eleven are here for the first time.

This year there were a record number of applicants for the festival, including 26 artists in the open class category.

“It was very competitive this year, we had a record 61 submissions, only 34 were chosen and 11 of those are new artists this year,” Red Wing Arts Heather Lawrenz said. “We are featuring artists from New York to South Dakota to New Mexico, and they are all coming to our region.”

Plein air means “open air” in French. It became popular in the 1870s and 1880s with Impressionists painters such as Claude Monet.

The style is a “study of how light and shadow interact with things, creating a snapshot of one moment in time that can never be repeated,” according to the Red Wing Arts website.

Throughout the week artists were positioned around Red Wing to paint the scenes.

Artist Anne Molasky attempted to capture the scene at the concert in the park Wednesday night.

She ran into a problem. Part way through her painting, the subjects of the painting left.

“Plein air is a whole different ball game,” she said.

Kelly Schamberger, one of the juried artists, spoke about the process she takes in creating her paintings.

“During a competition like this, you don’t have a lot of time to overthink the subject,” Schamberger said. “I’m just reacting immediately to what I see when choosing scenery that catches my eye,”

One of her scenes this week was an impulsive choice.

“One of the paintings I did was of this algae-covered pond near Frontenac,” Schamberger said. “I was driving by it to get to the state park, and I saw the colors on the water out of the corner of my eye, and I was like, ‘I want to paint that.’”

The scene was beautiful, but there was a price to pay. She was in the full sun.

“It was super hot,” she said.

The scene wasn’t something she would normally paint, but something drew her to it.

“Something sparks my artistic heart and that is what I look for and I love the outcome,” Schamberger said.

Schamberger came from Duluth and enjoyed traveling to Red Wing for this competition. This is her fourth competition. She continues to learn about plein air.

“When I first started these competitions, I used to go out seeking something to paint,” Schamberger said. “I have found that that leads to frustration, and you go into it with expectations and get let down.”

After completing her paintings for the week, she felt a sense of accomplishment and joy.

“I’m gratefully pleased

with the collection of paintings I created, such a sense of freedom coming off of the opening of my solo exhibit, like a door wide open to possibility for the next great art adventure,” Schamberger said.

During the festival, Red Wing Arts hosted open class events for artists and community members to participate in and observe.

“This year we increased the number of Red Wing Arts hosted group paint events, and we invited the community to come and watch and see the art in action,” Lawrenz said.

The artwork made during the festival will be judged by Bob Upton, an award-winning plein air artist from St. Paul.

After the final awards on Saturday, the artwork will be on exhibit at the Depot Gallery until Aug 8. There will be an opportunity to view and purchase artwork from the artists at Levee Park on Saturday.

HERITAGE PRESERVATION

‘We worked hard’

Liberty’s receives award for reconstruction

BY SARAH KNIEFF
Staff Writer

Doug Noreen, owner of Liberty’s Restaurant, won a merit award from the Red Wing Heritage Preservation Commission for the reconstruction of his building that was destroyed in 2020 when a car crashed into the building.

“The No. 1 objective was to get the building looking like nothing happened,” Noreen said. “I was happy to receive the award. We worked hard.”

On Sept. 2, 2020, a drunken driver crashed his car into the corner of Liberty’s, bringing down chunks of the restaurant space and apartments above.

The building was dated to 1886. Noreen wasn’t sure it could be saved.

“Once the commission and I figured out it was able to be saved, the biggest challenges were matching the new brick with the old and including the original columns in our final design,” Noreen said.

The building remained closed for about nine months during construction, but Noreen continued with take-out orders to keep revenue going.

“The first level was reconstructed to its pre-accident form with only a minor change to the storefront at its unique 45-degree angle,” Steve Kohn, commission staff liaison, said in a news release. “In this location, two original cast iron columns that were covered by the storefront were pulled from the debris. Doug made the decision to include these original columns in the final design of the storefront, which resulted in the storefront stepping back slightly in this location.”

Noreen worked with architect Daniel Pollastrini of Pope Architects, Tekton Engineers and Bauer Design Build to complete the restoration in June 2021.

Liberty’s Restaurant started in-person dining that same month, and Noreen said it was nice seeing customers inside the building again.

“The entire Noreen family are commended for their efforts in preserving this iconic structure in downtown Red Wing,” Kohn said.

State tax credits may become unavailable

Lawmakers fail to OK extension before adjourning

BY MELISSA THORUD
Staff Writer

A Minnesota state historic tax credit has been available for redevelopment of historic buildings since the original bill passed in 2010. This credit may become unavailable after the legislature adjourned before passing an extension on the bill.

Many small towns across the state relied on these tax credits for redevelopment projects, including projects Red Wing.

The current project to redevelop the former Associated Bank project in Red Wing is still in the planning stages. Developers were hoping to apply for the state tax credits to cover a portion of the cost.

The projects can still move forward without the tax credits, but it does create some difficulty.

“It makes the projects a little more difficult to fill some of our financial gaps,” said Kyle Klatt, Red Wing community development director.

Although the Minnesota tax credits may become unavailable, developers can still take advantage of some of the federal tax credits that are continuing to become available.

According to the Minnesota State Historic Preservation Office, “The Minnesota Historic Structure Rehabilitation Tax Credit offers a 20% state tax credit for qualified historic rehabilitations, and parallels the existing federal rehabilitation tax credit.”

The office released a statement saying it will no longer be accepting applications for the program.

“On May 23, 2022, the Minnesota State Legislature adjourned without passing an extension for the Minnesota Historic Structure Rehabilitation Tax Credit,” read the statement. “The program will sunset after June 30, 2022. SHPO will no longer accept new state Part A applications for the program.”

If the state legislature doesn’t hold a special session to pass this bill, it will affect some of the projects that have not yet secured that funding.

“There are federal tax credits, and those are not expiring and will still apply. But basically it halves the amount that would be available in tax credits for the projects that are eligible to use them,” Klatt said.

City development officials are hoping that the legislature will hold a special session and is strongly in favor of an extension. This portion of the tax bill in particular that includes the state tax credits for historic buildings has bi-partisan support.

“This was in the tax bill that was recommended by both the House and the Senate and without this being approved right now it is set to expire on the 30th, and we are not the only city that is concerned about that,” Klatt said.

Red Wing has a historic district that brings visitors to the city and is enjoyed by the local community. Because of the unique building structures, Red Wing is a perfect example city to use these tax credits. Many other historic cities are in the same position.

“Other cities that have historic buildings are in the same boat where there are potential projects that really could make use of those credits for rehabilitating these older buildings, and it does hurt the available source of funding,” Klatt said.

The tax credits were originally made available to repurpose old historic buildings in the state that were being unused. Some of the historic buildings are difficult to redevelop because of the need to preserve the buildings while creating something new out of them.

The state creating a 20% tax credit to developers for projects in historic districts helped with funding and creating solutions for that extra cost of redevelopment that can be difficult.

Many of these projects have focused on creating housing out of the historic buildings. In a time when housing is a strong need in communities like Red Wing, the tax credits are helpful in closing that housing gap.

As of now, there is no certainty in whether or not a special session will be held to extend this bill and allow for new projects to access these tax credits.

Some projects that have already applied and have been approved for the credits will still receive the money. However, projects that do not yet have approvals like the Associated Bank building, the tax credits are uncertain and may never be approved.

We are hiring!

ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT

Sprout events offer collaboration for vitality

BY TIM PENNY
Southern Minnesota Initiative Foundation

Throughout the month of June I had the pleasure of visiting with folks from across Southern Minnesota Initiative Foundation’s (SMIF) 20-county region during our Sprout events. These events, which were held in New Ulm, Dundas and Winona, were an opportunity to directly share SMIF’s resources and stories so that more people can take advantage of the funding and support services that we offer to help communities in the region thrive.

Our staff are often out on the road meeting with clients, hosting trainings and visiting with partners. However, we do not get very many opportunities to bring people from all three of our program areas – Early Childhood, Economic Development and Community Vitality – together.

The Sprout events did just that. Similar to a Business After Hours, these events were primarily about networking, forging new connections and doing what we do best – collaborating for regional vitality.

Not only were people from all backgrounds able to come together in one location to make important connections, but we also had a short program at each Sprout event during which several of our partners shared their stories of how working with SMIF has impacted their communities.

Betty Uehling, director of Early Childhood and Family Education programs at New Ulm Public Schools, was one of several Early Childhood professionals who shared how receiving free books has contributed to early literacy amongst young children in the district.

She shared how important it has been for her staff to attend trainings about building social emotional development skills for children which set them up for success in school and in life.

Our economic development partners spoke about the support they have received, and programs they have partnered with SMIF on, to support economic growth in the region. Fatima Said, executive director of Project FINE, a Winona-based non-profit that helps new immigrants integrate into life in Minnesota, spoke about creating pathways to prosperity for entrepreneurs through support from SMIF.

We also heard how our partners are contributing to community vitality. SMIF supports 30 Community Foundations in the region, including the Wabasha Kellogg Area Community Foundation. Dr. Bob Mann, former chair of the Community Foundation, spoke about the many ways that they have been able to invest back into the community. Whether it’s offering free pool passes to youth, raising funds for the local library to put in a children’s addition, training a mental health professional that serves Wabasha, starting a tree garden to replace trees that have been lost to the Emerald Ash Borer or making the food shelf more accessible, the Community Foundation has partnered with SMIF on many initiatives that give back to their small town and surrounding area.

My hope is that everyone who attended these events walked away with some new information about how they can partner with SMIF to help their communities thrive. If you didn’t get a chance to attend our Sprout events this year, you can watch the videos of our speakers and view photos of the events by visiting smifoundation.org/sprout.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Senators need to return

As one of Minnesota’s numerous seniors on a fixed income I was encouraged that our state House of Representatives agreed to a bipartisan framework that helps seniors survive. That was back in May.

In June, the extremist Republican-controlled Minnesota Senate decided that they weren’t interested in helping seniors and rejected the whole House bipartisan budget. They rejected reducing state income tax on our Social Security. They rejected property tax reduction for seniors living on a fixed income.

The Senate Republicans walked away from much needed funding for pandemic strapped nursing homes. They did not fund an increase in health and human service money that help seniors with their health care and staying in their own homes.

Most hypocritical was their denial of any increase in funding for public safety. It seems odd that the Republicans campaign on public safety but won’t fund it.

The phrase “All Politics is Local” doesn’t apply to Republicans in Minnesota. Our conservative Minnesota Senate occupants are apparently controlled by their national leadership who has told them that holding power is more important than taking care of Minnesotans.

All the Minnesota Republican Senate President has to do is call the Senate back in session. Minnesota has the money. The Democrats are waiting. Senate President Jeremy Miller, please do the right thing and call the senate back. Your elderly constituents will be grateful and so will the rest of us seniors living in Minnesota.

Put students first on board

Standing up for public education is an honorable and challenging pursuit. As we approach filing dates for three school board openings, I would like to share why I first ran and a few things I learned during my service on the school board.

I ran to be a community helper. No personal agenda, no political agenda, no religious agenda. I wanted to move my community forward by supporting our kids.

Put students first. Serving all children is the mission of public education. We strive to meet each child where they are at. It’s what we want for our own children and grandchildren. It should be what every child receives here in Red Wing.

Be prepared to be a lifelong learner. Learn the role of a school board member. Take the training. It will make you a better board member. By definition, you are part of a team – with your fellow board members and with the superintendent.

Practice oversight, not management. Be a bridge between the community and the school district. Remember it’s a two-way street. There’s usually a larger, more complex context around decisions than most people realize.

Act with integrity. Model professionalism for the district and the community. Respectful, civil leadership is the only way to keep the focus on what’s best for kids.

Please remember these basics as you go cast your vote or think about running for office.

Doing our best for our kids means being fair, responsible, and honest adults in the community.

RED WING SCHOOL BOARD

Norton to be acting superintendent

Appointment will last until interim superintendent hired

BY SARAH KNIEFF
Staff Writer

Red Wing High School Interim Principal Frank Norton will be acting as the district’s superintendent starting July 1 until the position has been filled.

Norton has been working within Red Wing Public Schools for under a year and has applied for the interim superintendent position. He is one of three candidates scheduled for interviews by the school board on June 27. The board is expected to extend a job offer that night or following day.

After the interim is hired, board members plan to conduct a search for a permanent superintendent during the coming school year.

Members chose to hire an interim first because they needed to have someone in the position by July 1 since outgoing Karsten Anderson’s contract ends June 30.

Norton will receive $150 per calendar day as compensation for the extra responsibilities.

Board members approved this, higher meal prices and accepted donations at the June 20 meeting.

Meal prices

Breakfast and lunch prices will increase by 10 cents at all district schools to cover higher wages and inflation on food products.

This decision comes right after the federal government ended its free COVID-19 lunch program for all students.

Board member Jennifer Tift expressed her displeasure with the increase, thinking of families who have felt financial relief during the past two years.

“I understand we have to,” Tift said. “But it’s unfortunate.”

New pricing:

Breakfast

- ▶ Elementary: $1.70
- ▶ Middle school: $1.70
- ▶ High school: $1.70

Lunch

- ▶ Elementary: $2.80
- ▶ Middle school: $2.90
- ▶ High school: $3.05

The free kindergarten breakfast program – paid for by the state – will continue next school year.

“We will be utilizing breakfast in the classroom as this has been a huge success that happened only out of necessity during the pandemic,” Jess Pena, director of nutrition services, said. “A silver lining for breakfast consumption. As you know students cannot learn on an empty stomach.”

Donations

The following donations were accepted by board members:

- ▶ $50 from Mark and Valerie Estabrook for the emergency medical fund.
- ▶ $58,865 from Red Wing Public Schools Foundation and Jones Family Foundation for field trips, yoga classes, art supplies, science kits and more.
- ▶ $600 from Red Wing Ignite for the Learn and Earn Program.

“Thank you to everyone,” Kartsen Anderson, outgoing superintendent, said.

ELECTIONS

Min MartinOakes candidate profile

BY MELISSA THORUD
Staff Writer

Red Wing Sustainability Commission and Charter Commission member Min MartinOakes is running for the open Ward 2 seat on the Red Wing City Council.

MartinOakes

MartinOakes is a first generation American, her parents came to the United States after World War II from Scotland.

“My parents settled first in Canada and then they moved to the Chicago area, so I was born there and then when I was 4, we moved to a suburb of Chicago and I grew up there. I moved to the Twin Cities in the 1980s and then later moved to Red Wing,” she said.

MartinOakes has an extensive teaching background, before moving to the Twin Cities she taught first in Illinois. When she moved to Minnesota she taught in a few school districts before moving to Red Wing for another teaching position.

“All of my teaching experience was special education anywhere from early childhood up to elementary and some high school as well. Then later in my career I became a school administrator and supervised some special education programming,” she said.

MartinOakes was principal of Colvill Family Center for eight years. She currently does some part-time work for Goodhue County Education.

“I still supervise their birth to 3 early intervention programs for the entire county,” she said.

MartinOakes hopes to take her leadership experience and skills and apply them to the Ward 2 seat.

“I’m running because I love my community, and the people who live here. My long career in public education has allowed me many leadership opportunities. Serving in our public schools also gave me an opportunity to know many families and see the community from their perspective,” she said.

Community service is a top priority for MartinOakes.

“I had thought about running in the last election for the Ward 2 seat but the timing didn’t feel right,” she said. “When it happened that unfortunately Andy Klitzke had to resign in December, I thought this was a good opportunity to run.”

If elected, MartinOakes is focused on effective and positive leadership and good stewardship of money and housing.

“I’m really focused on good stewardship of money. ... I look at it from a point of view of you’re responsible for caring for the money, and I did that when I ran the school. Being careful with money and being a good steward with money is something that is a cornerstone for me in my personal life and professional life,” she said.

MartinOakes will use her experiences from serving on the Sustainability Commission and Charter Commission in the Ward 2 seat if elected.

“I really loved the work in Sustainability Commission, and I’ve met some fantastic people and have made good connections and I also am on the Charter Commission, and I love policy work, and I’ve loved the experiences,” she said.

MartinOakes plans to get to know residents in Ward 2 during her campaign and listen to the needs of those she will be advocating for.

“I’m planning to start door knocking and focusing on asking, ‘What do you think and what is important to you’ and also talking with some of the department heads to get their perspective. I want to get that broad perspective,” she said.

MartinOakes is looking forward to her campaign journey and learning more about the community along the way.

“As a first-generation

American, I am humbled at just having the opportunity to run for public office,” she said. “As cliché as it may sound, my parents came here to build a better life and to find adequate housing. They taught me to love my country and democracy, to value public education and to be grateful.”

She continued, “A generation later, their daughter is running for public office. It warms my heart to think of what their reaction to this would be.”

Phone and Internet Discounts Available to CenturyLink Customers

The Minnesota Public Utilities Commission designated CenturyLink as an Eligible Telecommunications Carrier within its service area for universal service purposes. CenturyLink’s basic local service rates for residential voice lines are $15.96-$27.50 per month and business services are $34.61-$48.61 per month. Specific rates will be provided upon request.

CenturyLink participates in a government benefit program (Lifeline) to make residential telephone or qualifying broadband service more affordable to eligible low-income individuals and families. Eligible customers are those that meet eligibility standards as defined by the FCC and state commissions. Residents who live on federally recognized Tribal Lands may qualify for additional Tribal benefits if they participate in certain additional federal eligibility programs. The Lifeline discount is available for only one telephone or qualifying broadband service per household, which can be on either wireline or wireless service. Broadband speeds must be 25 Mbps download and 3 Mbps upload or faster to qualify.

A household is defined for the purposes of the Lifeline program as any individual or group of individuals who live together at the same address and share income and expenses. Lifeline service is not transferable, and only eligible consumers may enroll in the program. Consumers who willfully make false statements in order to obtain a Lifeline discount can be punished by fine or imprisonment and can be barred from the program.

If you live in a CenturyLink service area, please call 1-800-201-4099 or visit centurylink.com/lifeline with questions or to request an application for the Lifeline program.

‘My children always come first’

Local mom wins educational scholarships

BY SARAH KNIEFF
Staff Writer

Toni La'Shon Stewart – single mom and survivor of domestic violence – won two $1,000 educational scholarships from the state and regional chapters of National Association of Housing and Redevelopment Officials. She is the first winner from Red Wing. “I never ever thought I would be here and get these awards,” Stewart said. “I always use my resources so as soon as I saw the scholarship applications, I got to work to apply.” Corrine Stockwell, finance manager for Red Wing Housing and Redevelopment Authority, helped Stewart with the application process and was excited for the opportunity. “Toni is our local first winner because she is the first to apply, but man she is deserving,” Stockwell said. “She has come a long way and is doing well for herself as she studies at MSC Southeast.” Stewart and her children moved from Arizona to Red Wing in 2019 after fleeing from her husband and domestic abuse. “I had seven dollars to my name, an old Buick and four trash bags of our stuff, but somehow we made it,” she said. “I do remember being super scared and nervous to find housing. I called many shelters, looking for a place to rest and finally found Hope Coalition.” The Stewarts stayed in the Hope Coalition shelter for five months before getting a townhouse through the Red Wing Housing and Redevelopment Authority, where they still live today. “I have gotten so much help from the Red Wing community,” Stewart said. “It’s been a true blessing.” As Stewart continues to create a life in Red Wing, she prides herself on using all her resources to give her children the best. “My children always come first,” Stewart said. “When my 5-year-old wants juice, I get it for him. He says, ‘Mama you’re rich,’ and I’m not.”

Stewart is studying business management at Minnesota State College Southeast. On campus, she is active in the Student Senate Committee and works at the front desk. “I won’t lie, it’s hard juggling being a mother, homework and everything else, but I do it,” she said. “Before I started school I was hard on myself for starting at my age [early 30s]. I’m my own worst critic. I’m so glad I did it though.” Stewart plans on using her two $1,000 scholarships for tuition and books in the coming fall semester. She is expected to graduate sometime next year and afterward wants to transfer to a four-year university. “Being a single mom of three fantastic children, juggling academics, work, community assistance and extracurriculars, there is nothing that I would change about my journey thus far because it has helped shape me into someone who can conquer just about anything that comes my way,” she said. Island owned by Charlie Gardas.” Viewers can watch the 20-minute show from the local parks, atop a bluff or any downtown vantage point. “KWNG will play music during the show,” Hanisch said. “We definitely recommend tuning into KWNG to hear all the sponsors and individuals that put in the work to make this show happen and to listen to the music.” Illumination is headed by Sam and Tessa Blue, Travis Kinney, Gabe and Marisa Kinney, Bill Hanisch, Bob Carlson, a small group of helpers and Downtown Main Street. Red Wing Downtown Main Street is currently asking for donations to cover some of the cost. “All of the work is done completely by volunteers to make sure that all of the money raised goes directly into producing one of the best fireworks shows in the area,” Hanisch said. “Many local businesses and individuals donate to the show and the city matches up to $12,000.

CHURCH MOUSE

Summer lineups

BY KATE JOSEPHSON

There was a long line ahead of me at the outdoor ice cream place in Cannon. Kids were ordering things I’d never heard of before. An older gentleman asked a child whose cap came only a little ways above the elder’s belt buckle, “Who won the game?” I think I then heard, “Congratulations.”

My husband and I both thought it was a particularly good batch of vanilla soft serve.

We made our way back to Red Wing on the north side of the river. There wasn’t much traffic but quite a variety — including a van outfitted to haul canoes pulled off to the side and a golf cart on the gravel road a few miles farther along.

I always like to pull over at Cannon River Lutheran Church. I once sat in the shade of the old building off to the side while my husband helped a friend change a flat tire in the parking lot across the road.

We used to refer to this location as “The Church of the Hol(e)y Tire.”

The worship video for here popped up on my Facebook stream earlier in the day. Oops, I don’t remember what the sermon was about. I do remember the pianist playing and singing “Amazing Grace” and that the subtle shadows of the tree limbs waving in the breeze here reminded me of the faint shadows his shoulders and arms cast on the wall behind him.

And I remember that the interim pastor was wearing a green and white Hawaiian print shirt. He used a favorite expression about how you can “hear the corn grow.” I recall standing on good soil in the neat green rows as a kid and ‘hearing’ the faint squeak, like when you pull the husk off of sweet corn, and a little magical snap, crackle, pop, like when you pour milk on crispy cereal.

The Saturday before there had been some similarly beautiful peonies on neatly set and arranged tables in the basement of my hometown church. It was a wedding shower. I got to read a few lines in honor of my nephew. His fiancé seemed as amused as I’d hoped that I had folded a dollar bill into the shape of a house.

Oh, now I remember; there was another farm reference. Those pigs, however, couldn’t fly — unlike as depicted by one of the new sculptures in Red Wing. Part of the theme was that “all might feel acceptance.” Hearing the closing words again I made note: it was asked that we all may be “...blessed with many surprises of grace.”

Red Wing Arts shows off new sculptures

BY MELISSA THORUD
Staff Writer

During a week of art festivities, Red Wing Arts and Downtown Main Street hosted the 2022 sculpture walk tour introducing the nine new sculptures installed across town. Tours were given and along the sculpture walk, background stories were told for each of the sculptures and what the artist's intent and vision was when creating these new-to-Red Wing sculptures.

Balance of Power

Pati Stajcar

The Balance of Power is placed near the river on the Riverwalk downtown. The sculpture is made from bronze and according to the Red Wing Art Walk website "depicts two eagles scrapping in a fight or mating ritual; the artist prefers to let viewers interpret which."

It is a central piece to that area and is a focal point for walkers and boaters passing through. The sculpture has a cost of $120,000 and is temporarily placed in Red Wing for the 2022 cycle of sculptures.

Art Kenyon, one of the tour guides for the 2022 sculpture walk said, "We thought this statue was pretty spectacular. We thought this was a great spot for this piece because it is indigenous to the area, you all know you can come down here in the fall, and you will see hundreds of eagles in these tree lines."

Time to Fly

Kyle Fokken

"This is a combination of steel and the pig is bronze, and we thought this would be a good place for this down here by Red Wing Arts because it is different and that is another thing we are trying to do with this program is to accomplish diversity among the artists and among the presentation," Kenyon said.

The Time to Fly sculpture is part of a piggy bank series that the artist has created. This statue is located outside of Red Wing Arts and the depot with a cost of $12,000.

The Red Wing Art Walk website says, "This piece reminds us that money should be saved but not hoarded away and it is OK to take risks with it. Money is a tool and should be spent for the good of society, but also for fun with our families and friends."

We Can Do It!

Lee Leuning and Sherri Treeby

This sculpture references the Rosie The Riveter artwork from World War II when women workers were recruited into the workforce. This statue is modernized to reference women empowerment today.

The sculpture is located on West Third Street near Indigo Salon. The cost of this artwork is $25,000, and it is made from bronze.

The Art Walk website describes the sculpture: "The artists' young 'Rosie the Riveter' is based on the iconic World War II morale poster promoting the huge role women played in our country's industrial war production. They took over all the traditional men-only tasks. Those men were then freed up to join the ranks of U.S. combat soldiers around the world. Rosie has had a lasting impact on how we now perceive women's equal role in our society. A whole new world has opened up to our young women."

Rising Sun

Patrick Shannon

Rising Sun is also located on West Third Street across from the We Can Do It! sculpture. This piece is made from copper and stainless steel.

"My goal is to create interesting and beautiful sculptures," the artist Patrick Shannon said. "I work intuitively, starting at the bottom of the piece, building and adding until it feels complete."

The sculpture has a cost of $8,000 and can be interpreted as, like its name, a rising sun.

School's Out

Lee Leuning and Sherri Treeby

School's Out is located outside of Home Plate and Dugout Restaurant. Going with the baseball theme, Red Wing Arts wanted to place this sculpture outside of the restaurant when acquiring it for the sculpture walk.

"The reason this is called 'School's Out' is because in his back pocket here it says 'Johnny hasn't been paying attention in class very much this spring' and it's because he's out playing baseball and that is a cool addition to the statue," Kenyon said.

The sculpture is made from bronze and costs $17,000.

Wild Thing

Heidi Hoy

This sculpture depicts the nature of a wild horse. It is made from bronze and costs $20,000 located outside of Uffda shop on Bush Street.

"For this you have to remember that the original piece is sculpted in wax, and it be made as smooth as an egg or you can play with it like this and so this piece encapsulates the freedom of a wild horse with the diversity of texture and movement in the piece," Kenyon said,

Eggspert

Kimber Fiebiger

This sculpture is from a series of eggs that the artist Kimber Fiebiger has created.

This piece is located outside of Fair Trade Books and is made from bronze.

"This artist does a whole series of eggs, and they are all very whimsical and have quite an attitude," Kenyon said. "This is an unusual process that the artist uses to put color on the bronze, and it is a combination of pigment and heat and a blow torch."

The cost of Eggspert is $4,200. Red Wing Arts has brainstormed places for this sculpture to permanently live, one idea is to have it at an elementary school in town.

The Visitor

Chris Kilbane

This abstract piece is up for interpretation of viewers and spectators.

"The way this artist presents this piece, he likes to work in abstract, and he starts at the bottom and works his way up so it is serendipitous," Kenyon said, "He doesn't sit down at a drafting table to do it ahead of time."

The sculpture is made from bronze and steel and costs $8,500. On the Art Walk website they say, "Living near the shores of Lake Superior in Northern Minnesota, Chris Kilbane uses steel for most of his work. This colorful sculpture reaches toward the sky with its warm and cool contrasts. Of this piece Kilbane laughingly reflects, 'Most people say, 'I don't know what it is, but I love it', - I love that!'"

Sunflowers

Dale Lewis and Gerie Thelen

The idea for the Sunflowers sculpture came from an experiment that artist Dale Lewis was trying. By welding nails to a circular piece of metal, he decided it looked like the center of a Sunflower. The idea bloomed from there. Collaborating with Gerie Thelen to add the fused glass petals to add color, the sculpture came to life. When deciding where to place this sculpture, Red Wing Arts decided that the corner of Plum Street and Ward Street would be a good spot to welcome visitors with the vibrant color yellow that comes from the piece.

"In the morning when sun breaks right across the street these petals just light up and it is quite dynamic," Kenyon said.

Red Wing Public Works helped with the installation of all of the sculptures along the Art Walk, earning the thanks of Red Wing Arts and Downtown Main Street.

Each of the sculptures is available for purchase and can become permanent with purchase. The nine sculptures will remain in Red Wing on loan until 2023. If there is interest in purchasing the sculptures, contact Red Wing Arts at 651-388-7569. Visit artwalkredwing.com for information on each of the sculptures.

SCULPTURE

Mayor Mike Wilson spoke at the ceremony, he said, "This is wonderful, this is typical for Red Wing whether it is raising money to build the YMCA across the street, paid in full. Or the Sheldon Theater and restoring that, paid in full. And buying artwork like this, paid in full."

He continued, "It is great what this community does and I'm very proud of what everybody in the community can do."

Many members of the community came together for this special moment. As the city has aimed to continue growing the art community in Red Wing and invested in creating programs and opportunities for efforts like this, the community is able to see the outcome of what can happen when they come together.

Megan Tsui, the executive director at Downtown Main Street, also spoke about the work that went into the sculpture walk in Red Wing.

"This is the first purchase that we hope is one of many more that the community can take part in and bring to town, sculptures that the community falls in love with that we have here temporarily. We want to be able to continue to bring them here and make them permanent," Tsui said.

A committee formed behind the scenes to make this fundraiser happen. Brain and Joyce Peterson helped to create the committee and coordinate ways to raise the money. With the committee's effort, the community reached the $10,000 goal to purchase the sculpture.

A statement was read on behalf of Joyce Peterson, one of the committee members who spearheaded the initiative to raise funds for the purchase of "Synchronous."

In her statement she wrote, "While touring the first sculpture walk, the grand opening participants watched as the sunset hit and beautifully illuminated the side Synchronous, the buzz amongst those present was that this luminous piece was like a gateway to downtown announcing that Red Wing cares about community art."

"After thinking for quite some time that the people of Red Wing could, by working together, crowd-source something wonderful for our community, I felt I had truly found that special something," Peterson said.

The sculpture will remain at the corner of Main Street and East Avenue in front of the Chamber of Commerce as a "gateway to downtown."

NEWS OF THE PAST

GOODHUE COUNTY HISTORICAL SOCIETY

A photo from the 1947 River Pageant. In 1922 it was reported that more boats have entered than ever before, more fireworks have been provided and to cap the climax there is going to be a great “surprise” to mark the close of the 1922 pageant.

1922 river pageant bigger than ever

GOODHUE COUNTY HISTORICAL SOCIETY

25 Years – 1997

June 27, 1995, two years ago this week, the community was rocked to its core by the disappearance of 3-year-old Jessica Swanson from her Cannon Falls home. Despite an intensive search by the federal, state, and local authorities and numerous volunteers, and a continuing investigation, Jessica has not been found. Law enforcement personnel plan to mark the date with a press conference. Jessica was last seen in the home she shared with her mother, Michelle Swanson; sister, Jenna; and Michelle’s boyfriend Dale Jensen.

After several months and more than 1,000 leads, authorities said they considered Jensen a suspect in the case. Both he and Michelle have denied any knowledge of her whereabouts.

Ron Des Lauries of Vasa has an interesting hobby. He races pigeons.

“Training them is just like training a racehorse. That’s why they’re called the ‘thoroughbreds of the sky,’” he said.

Ron had pigeons back when he was 12. They were racing homers but at that time he didn’t race them. He just had them for fun.

How do you train homing pigeons to race? The training flights, called a “training toss,” build up stamina in the bird and strength in their wings. Starting in July he will be training southwest from the Kenyon area. They have to exercise and learn how to get home by themselves. The old bird racing season is starting now, and they go up to 600 miles a race.

50 years – 1972

Twenty-three years after Mrs. Lena Campbell, 90, Prairie Island, signed a request that the white men pay the Sioux Indians for the Minnesota land taken from them in the 1800s, her grandson is making the appeal in Washington, D.C.

Curtis Campbell, chairman of the Prairie Island Indian community, was among tribal representatives from Sioux communities in Minnesota, South Dakota and Iowa who spoke before an Indian Affairs subcommittee in Washington recently. Their claim is for payment for the 29 million acres of land in those states, designated as Sioux land in treaties but later taken by white settlers.

100 years – 1922

When the curfew blows at 9 o’clock tonight a signal gun will be fired on the island opposite Red Wing, the band will play and the leading boats in the big river pageant will “set sail” from the bay for the parade past Levee Park.

Commodore Arnold Julsrud of the Yacht Club assures us that the pageant this year will surpass all previous events. More boats have entered than ever before, more fireworks have been provided and to cap the climax there is going to be a great “surprise” to mark the close of the 1922 pageant.

PEPIE INSIGHT

Advisory issued for St. Croix River

Last year Minnesota Pollution Control Agency, which is updating its list of impaired lakes and rivers, added the Lake Pepin tributary, the St. Croix River among 15 lakes and rivers the agency proposes adding to the list because of PFAS, or “forever chemicals.”

At the time the concentrations were considered within the allowed limits despite warning pregnant or nursing parents to avoid eating any fish from the river.

PFAS don’t break down easily and tend to accumulate in the environment, humans and wildlife. PFAS have been linked to negative health impacts including low birth weight, kidney and thyroid problems and some cancers.

Experts agreed at the time that the degree of contamination present and levels of toxicity were just being uncovered. True to form, last week the EPA released four drinking water health advisories for polyfluoroalkyl substances (PFAS) in the latest action under President Biden’s action plan to deliver clean water and Administrator Regan’s PFAS Strategic Roadmap. EPA also announced that it is inviting states and territories to apply for $1 billion – the first of $5 billion in Bipartisan Infrastructure Law grant funding – to address PFAS and other emerging contaminants in drinking water, specifically in small or disadvantaged communities.

The updated advisory levels, which are based on new science and consider lifetime exposure, indicate that some negative health effects may occur with concentrations of PFOA or PFOS in water that are near zero and below EPA’s ability to detect at this time.

Juneteenth event, crime rates, more covered this week

Breakfast on the Farm

Casey O'Reilly, the farmer that hosted this year's Goodhue County Breakfast on the Farm, likes to start his day at 4:30 a.m. The day of the event was no different. The annual Breakfast on the Farm aims to educate the local community about the positive impacts that the dairy industry has in Goodhue County. This year, the O'Reilly Organic Dairy farm hosted the community for the event. This is this first year since the beginning of the COVID-19 pandemic that the event was able to happen in person. After two years of a drive-thru event the family was happy to be hosting back to normal. "It was great to see people who actually wanted to come out and see what happens on a dairy farm first hand. We were amazed at how many people came out from all over," Kim O'Reilly said. During this event, people are encouraged to ask questions about the daily work that is done on the farm. Casey O'Reilly said, "I usually like to be out the door around 4:30 each morning to milk and get started on the tasks for the day." Kim O'Reilly works alongside Casey and their three sons in the operations of their organic dairy farm. Casey and Kim O'Reilly both have lifelong experiences with owning and operating farms. They grew up on family-owned farms. They hoped to do the same for their sons and that is when they began their endeavor. The O'Reilly's take pride in their work and were happy to share their daily lives with visitors for a day. Kim O'Reilly said, "I just want to thank all the sponsors and volunteers and the community for their outpouring of support and for attending the event."

rate in 2020 and general life expectancy of 79 for residents. The report is a part of county participation in the state Performance Measurement Program. By participating, Goodhue can receive reimbursement up to 14 cents per capita in local government aid and levy limit exemption for taxes payable. Funding cannot exceed $25,000 per year, and the state auditor will look over the report in July to determine eligibility. Brian Anderson, auditor and treasurer, shared the report with county board members prior to the June 21 meeting. Report highlights Average life expectancy is 79 as of 2022. For all Minnesota counties it's 80.4.
Average tobacco use is 19% as of 2022 and for all Minnesota counties it's 18.87%.

Juneteenth event

The city of Red Wing celebrated its first Juneteenth celebration on June 19, also known as Freedom Day. The Human Rights Commission collaborated with several organizations from around Red Wing including Hope Coalition and Goodhue County Historical Society to bring an event together that both educates and celebrates this day in history. Information about the history of the Black community in Red Wing was available and posted for attendees to read. One of the banners said, "As the Black community in the area continues to grow, so does empowerment." It also read, "In 2020, students at Red Wing Public High School created the Black Student Union to support Black students, improve the campus environment and encourage the retention of Black students." During the event, performances from the Sam Butler Band and Music by D.J. Green Machine filled Central Park. The celebrations for Juneteenth originally started in 1866.

Affordable housing options

A Red Wing resident asked, "What apartments are available for Section 8 in Red Wing?" The Section 8 housing program is used interchangeably with the program called the "Housing Choice Voucher." According to Housing and Redevelopment Authority Executive Director Kurt Keena, there isn't a complete list compiled of apartments that will accept housing vouchers. "We don't know exactly what apartments take housing vouchers. Essentially, it is voluntary on the part of landlords, and there isn't a requirement to accept a Section 8 voucher," he said. The issue of locating apartments that take housing vouchers stems from the increasing market rate rent prices, the voucher program hasn't increased the amount covered. Red Wing applied for an exception that allows for 120% of the payment standard. "A lot of apartments unfortunately are more expensive than the Housing Choice program will qualify for. Right now what we are seeing is the market rents have increased so much that a lot of apartments that used to meet the rent criteria have now gone above," Keena said. "A lot of places will accept the voucher if the payment standard will work for them. It is just right now the rent has increased so much faster than the payment standard of the program," he said. "We asked for permission to go up to 120% of that payment standard, and they gave us that authority which helped a little bit." For more information and resources visit redwinghra.org or call the

LOCAL RUNNERS

Winn leads local runners in Grandma’s Marathon

BY MARTIN SCHLEGEL
Sports Editor

Twenty one local runners participated in the annual Grandma’s Marathon on Saturday, June 18. Another 25 ran in the Garry Bjorklund Half Marathon. Each event runs along the north shore of Lake Superior between Two Harbors and the finish line in Canal Park in Duluth.

Red Wing’s Aiden Winn finished in 414th place among the 9,000 registered for the full marathon. He finished in 2 hours, 56 minutes, 46 seconds. His time qualifies him for the 2023 Boston Marathon.

Andy McNamara of Goodhue, who has run in the event a handful of times, finished in 3:26:31. He noted after the race the cool, cloudy conditions were optimal for running. In previous years, the sun reflecting off the lake gave all the runners sunburn on their left side. He celebrated his birthday on race day.

Caleb Odmark ended in 351st place of the 8,000 registered runners in the half marathon. The Ellsworth native had a time of 1:30:12 and maintained a sub-7 minute per mile pace.

Augustana finished 11-15 overall in the 2021-22 season. The Vikings ended its season with a loss to Elmhurst in the opening round of the College Conference of Illinois and Wisconsin.

Belisle wins second Players’ Championship

BY MARTIN SCHLEGEL
Sports Editor

Continuing where he left off last year, Red Wing’s Cecil Belisle is again winning trophies. The two-time high school state champ has had yet another strong year in 2022.

Belisle most recently won the Minnesota Golf Association Players’ Championship on Wednesday. He defeated Ryan Conn 5 and 4 to win the event at Burl Oaks Golf Course in Minnetrista.

Belisle previously won the MGA Players’ Championship in 2020 when he beat Conn by the same margin. It is the first time in 44 years that two players have met in the championship match for a second time.

Belisle beat Jacob Peterson in the round of 64, 3 and 1 on Monday to begin the event. He then bested Ian Simonich (21 holes) and Nick Jarrett (5 and 4) to advance to the quarterfinals. Belisle defeated Nate Adams 6 and 5 in the quarterfinals, then Gunnar Broin 5 and 3 in the semifinals.

While with South Mountain Community College team in the spring, Belisle won his second straight NJCAA Division II individual championship and helped SMCC to a team championship.
